Plutoids

The year 2009 is the International Year of Astronomy, commemorating the 400th anniversary of Galileo's use of a telescope. This work is my celebration of the importance of astronomy in our society. By representing the plutoids, I am attempting to capture something of current discovery and dialogue in astronomy today. The four sections of the piece represent each of the plutoids as officially designated in 2009. The musical ideas in each section represent my reaction to some aspect of the deity after which the plutoids are named: Pluto (Roman god of the underworld), Haumea (Hawaiian goddess of humanity), Make-Make (Rapanuian god of humanity and patron god of the bird-man cult), and Eris (Greek goddess of discord).
